

every animal, every day.

Every day, it is our responsibility to treat every one of our animals humanely and with compassion. Because they are living, feeling creatures and it's the right thing to do. Because their health may impact the quality of biomedical research. Because lives depend on it.