

Who cares?

We do.

For decades we have fostered a culture of caring across our company and around the globe to establish ourselves as a worldwide leader in the humane care of research animals.

Why this dedication to humane care? Because it is not only a moral imperative, it is a scientific necessity.

Going beyond the requirements set forth in federal and international regulations, Charles River's Humane Care initiative raises awareness of the importance of humane care. Through effective orientation and training, we continually reinforce this culture of caring that has been a passion of Charles River employees for more than 60 years.
